Reducing friction with ball bearings

Find two tin cans that have a deep groove around the top, such as paint cans. Lay marbles in one groove and invert the other can over the marbles to form a ball bearing. Place a book on top and note how easily the demonstration bearing turns. Oil the marbles and it will turn still more easily.