No-peeking Sketches
With its potential for silliness, this fun drawing game is a great thing to try with your kids. To begin, write the names of a dozen simple items, such as house, dog, plane, and so on, on strips of paper. Place the strips in a hat, and have each person take one. Without showing their word to anyone else, players take turns sketching the object with their eyes closed (or blindfolded), while the others attempt to guess what is being drawn.
